Dear Herman,

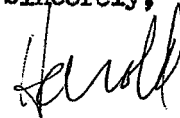

The enclosed letter may be the first of a series asking me about the missing index of NEVER AGAIN!.

Unless you prefer that I say something else I'll use xeroxes of my enclosed response.

If you want any changes, of course I'll make them.

If I hear nothing from you this is what I'll use.

Sincerely,

Please excuse my use of a form letter because I have no real choice. And my typing because it can be no better.

I am without question, the omission of the index from NEVER AGAIN! was an accident. Carroll & Graf did go to the trouble and expense of having it made and then set in type. The oversight was by a former production employee.

At this point, as a practical matter, nothing can be done about it. It was not discovered until all the copies were printed and distribution began.

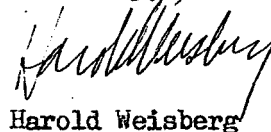

That is when Mr. Herman Graf discovered it. He phoned me immediately to explain it and to apologize for it.

To those of you who express your opinion of the book, I thank you for that and for taking the time.

Everybody is sorry about it.

Everybody wishes it had not happened.

Sincerely,
